Academic home to the 'First European'

Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University (RSM) is the business school of the renowned Erasmus University Rotterdam. Founded in 1913, the university is home to the first Nobel Prize winner in the Economic Sciences, Jan Tinbergen. Erasmus University Rotterdam takes its name from Desiderius Erasmus, the great Dutch humanist, theologian and philosopher. One of the foremost thinkers and doers of his time and a widely-travelled scholar, he is recognised for his open-minded, iconoclastic and individual ideas. Among the leading lights of the Renaissance, Erasmus is widely referred to today as the 'First European' and serves as the inspiration for RSM's focus on thought-leadership in business.

WELCOME TO RSM FROM THE DEAN

Thank you for considering Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University for your exchange programme

As Dean of Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University (RSM), I am gratified by the continued close relationship between RSM and our international network of partner schools. One of the most important aspects of an education at RSM is the potential to deepen your international experience. In part this occurs naturally through working and studying with a cohort of students who represent a broad range of nationalities. Beyond that, our programmes emphasise the importance of international experience for a very practical reason: business occurs in a global environment. Effective management requires an empirical understanding of other cultures. A young manager beginning a career today cannot imagine 40 years spent in the same country, much less with the same employer. Graduates of top business schools are expected to move with relative ease from one business – and country – to another.

At RSM, we encourage our students to take advantage of the opportunity for an international exchange. Those who do so will find more than 100 top schools in Africa, the Americas, Asia, Europe, and Oceania from which to choose. Take the chance to study abroad. It will broaden your career perspectives and deepen your personal insight. We look forward to welcoming our international colleagues and students from our respected partner schools.

THE RSM EXPERIENCE

Europe's international business school

Students from more than 80 countries worldwide choose to get a foothold in the business world by studying at RSM. RSM boasts an international student body, and offers exchange opportunities, multinational company internships and constant exposure to the world's diverse business models and practices. RSM is one of a select group of schools with Triple Crown accreditation from EQUIS, the leading international system of quality assessment of business schools, as well as AACSB and the Association of MBAs.

FOUNDED BY BUSINESS MANAGERS

In 1966, a perceived lack of training for managers in the Netherlands inspired Royal Dutch Shell together with Philips to set up a Foundation for Business Administration (Stichting Bedrijfskunde), later the Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University. Today, RSM has a full portfolio of programmes for new graduates and those who have already begun their careers. With 8,500 students, it has one of Europe's largest student bodies. The programmes are taught mostly in English and include bachelor's, master's and executive master's degrees, PhD programmes, fully-customised in-company programmes, and three flagship MBA programmes.

RSM WAS RANKED 7TH IN THE FINANCIAL TIMES EUROPEAN
BUSINESS SCHOOL
RANKING 2011 AND
IS CONSISTENTLY RANKED AS THE NUMBER ONE SCHOOL IN THE NETHERLANDS

Offering a full portfolio of undergraduate and post-graduate programmes, RSM takes its core Dutch values of openness, tolerance and flexibility as a platform for its primary focus – the development of leaders in global business. Genuine, world-class academic faculty; a welcoming host country where English is widely spoken; a learning environment that is international and outward-looking – these are just some of the factors that contribute to the unique, RSM educational experience.

AN INTERNATIONAL SCHOOL

Imagine being part of a university community that is a meeting point for no fewer than 80 different nationalities. Students at RSM have the world brought to them. An international student body, intercontinental study trips and exchange opportunities, multinational company internships, and constant exposure to the world's contrasting business models and practices all ensure that you come to understand the complexities inherent in global business; and leave with a network of international peers.

WORLD-CLASS RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

Quality teaching and academic content are at the heart of any business education. Over 350 active researchers within the Erasmus Research Institute of Management (ERIM), RSM's shared research institute, currently contribute to the improvement of business practice worldwide – in terms of sustainability and profitability – by publishing in the world's top journals, consulting for companies, and teaching our students. Our teaching faculty members bring our students not only the latest in business and management thinking, but fresh insights from their own research. RSM faculty members are passionate about their respective fields, and provide a first-class academic foundation to our programmes. Students learn thought-leadership from thought-leaders.

UNIQUE, OPEN LEARNING ENVIRONMENT

The Dutch are known worldwide as an outward-looking society, accepting of diversity, quick to embrace innovation, progressive, and cooperative. These are all values we share at RSM and which are embedded in the learning environment.

Students with diverse backgrounds interact comfortably in our programmes, debating, creating and collaborating in a community of equals. Difference not only co-exists, it is an important part of learning, with teaching methods all designed to capitalise on difference and thus develop students' ability to communicate effectively in a global environment – essential skills for today's managers.

WELCOMING HOST COUNTRY

Within easy reach of the continent's largest markets, with unique access to continental Europe, and home to the second largest commercial port in the world, Rotterdam has been a centre for international trade and commerce for centuries. The Netherlands is a multicultural country where English is widely spoken, and is home to 160 nationalities as well as major multinational corporations including Philips, Shell and Unilever.

GLOBAL NETWORKS

All RSM students benefit from the school's global network. RSM is a member of The Global Alliance for Management Education (CEMS), and the Partnership in International Management (PIM), an unparalleled partner network that gives our student exchange opportunities at top schools abroad. The school has extensive connections with the corporate world, with ING, DSM and Shell amongst our corporate partners. More than 20,000 RSM alumni currently fill executive positions in private, public and not-for-profit organisations, creating source of job and internship opportunities for those following in their footsteps.

WE PROUDLY INTRODUCE OUR EXCHANGE PROGRAMMES

Optimise your international potential

Our bachelor and master programmes have been designed to optimise students' potential in the international business arena. At RSM we combine theory with practice in the classroom, and as a result of the diverse and international student body enrolled in, or on exchange visits to, our programmes, students will work, live and learn in a truly global environment.

RSM OFFERS THE FOLLOWING EXCHANGE PROGRAMMES:

- ▶ Bachelor Exchange Programme for BSc or BBA students at undergraduate level;
- ▶ Master Exchange Programme for MSc or MBA students at graduate level;
- ▶ MBA Exchange Programme for MBA students at graduate level with professional experience.

FELLOW STUDENTS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

RSM maintains an international network of more than 100 business schools and universities. Most of these schools are member of CEMS (The Global Alliance for Management Education), or PIM (Partnership in International Management). Other partnerships are fostered through RSM's own bilateral relationships.

This means that when students come to RSM for their exchange, not only they are mixing with local students, but also with fellow students from RSM's entire partner school network, all of whom have chosen RSM for their exchange.

PARTNERSHIP IN INTERNATIONAL MANAGEMENT

In 1973, three graduate business schools, École des Hautes Études Commerciales de Paris (HEC), New York University (NYU), and London Business School (LBS), all succeeded in overcoming academic isolationism and multiple logistical obstacles to make student exchanges a reality. The Partnership in International Management, or PIM, is today a consortium of 58 top business schools from around the world that exchanges select graduate students for one academic term. Member institutions share responsibility for upholding the highest levels of academic excellence regionally and globally, and value the organisation's spirit of international co-operation among its students, faculty and staff. Over the years, PIM member institutions have exchanged several thousands of students. www.pimnetwork.org

CEMS

CEMS, the Global Alliance in Management Education, is a strategic alliance of leading business schools and multinational companies which cannot be equalled in terms of the reputations of its members: 27 world-class academic institutions collaborate with around 70 corporate partners to offer international students a unique combination of high quality education and professional experience. This joint degree programme is open to master students who meet very strict selection criteria. The CEMS-MIM programme is ranked number two amongst the top master programmes in management worldwide in the 2011 Financial Times ranking. www.cems.org

COURSES

The courses offered in the Bachelor Exchange Programme focus on the effective management of international companies. The teaching philosophy is based on the importance of cultural diversity in today's business world.

Exchange students can participate in courses from the BSc in International Business Administration (BScIBA), for which some basic knowledge of business such as operations, marketing, finance and accounting, or organisational and information processes, is expected. Knowledge of mathematics, statistics and micro- and macro-economics is a plus.

All courses (except for the research and bachelor thesis project) of the BScIBA second and third year are open to exchange students. In addition to the 15 ECTS workload from this programme, students are allowed to participate in one course at one of Erasmus University's other schools / faculties (except for Economics or Medicine). The International Business Bachelor Communication and Media courses at our school of History, Culture and Communication are popular among our exchange students.

The International Office is responsible for a well organised introduction programme, no matter at what level you are doing your exchange at RSM. In a short time all newcomers get to know each other through workshops and games merely focussed on team building.

THE INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS PROJECT (IBP)

The International Business Project (IBP) has been the cornerstone of the Master Exchange Programme at RSM since 1989. A team of international students works intensively on a consultancy project, for a company or institution over a period of approximately four months. The project is supervised by coaches from the university and the company, and the aim is to respond professionally to a real-world management problem and to learn from working together in multidisciplinary and culturally heterogeneous groups. For the companies involved in this project, it provides a unique opportunity to gain access to valuable knowledge, recommendations or solutions for a business problem within a relatively short period of time. Typically, the student teams introduce a refreshing outside perspective to the company's business issue.

The IBP reflects all of RSM's greatest strengths as a Top 10 European business school, recognised for the international diversity of our participants and the close relationship we maintain with business. Thanks to companies such as Johnson & Johnson Medical, Shell, Squarewise, ABB, Akzo Nobel, Aon, BP Europe, Cytec Industries BV, DSM, Eastman Chemical, General Elective, KONE BV, Pfizer, and many more, the business projects have proved to be a rewarding experience for the school and participating companies.

"Already for many years, hosting and coaching a RSM business project team have proven to be a rewarding and valuable experience to Aon. The students bring us up-to-date on business theory and by doing so; serve as a reminder to Aon management of the importance of lifelong learning. I very much appreciate this cooperation with RSM and its talented students; on behalf of Aon I am proud that we contributed to some of the winning projects."

Marc van Nuland, CEO, Aon Risk Solutions The Netherlands

IBP STRUCTURE: FIVE STAGES

- ▶ Introduction: after a successful application for a particular business project, students receive information about the company, the business project and their fellow team members. A kick-off lecture highlights potential pitfalls. Seminars and training are offered to prepare students for their business project.
- ▶ Problem definition: In this stage teams have their first meeting with their academic and company coaches. A project proposal which entails a brief description and analysis of the issue will be drafted. Students make suggestions for research, a time schedule and budgeting / resources needed. The phase ends with an approved proposal.
- ▶ Implementation research: Each team starts collecting data by consulting secondary sources, conducting interviews and analysing reports. The report must be approved by both coaches.
- ▶ Presentation of results: Towards the end of the project, the team presents its findings and recommendations to the company. In addition, teams will prepare a presentation for their fellow students and a jury of consultants at RSM.
- ▶ Evaluation: The project concludes with a review of the team effort and each student's individual learning experience. Identifying what students have learned in terms of project and consultancy skills, research skills and team skills is important.

"We have carried out several projects with RSM MSc exchange students. Working with them, as a company coach, I can say the collaboration was a real pleasure and beneficial for both sides; company and students. The company gets fresh input with ideas and perspectives from new angles from enthusiastic and capable students. We can continue to offer students the possibility to combine and consolidate their knowledge and skills with a realistic business problems in a dynamic business environment."

MBA EXCHANGE PROGRAMME

One of the most stimulating MBA programmes in Europe

MBA students studying at one of our partner schools are welcome to join our MBA Exchange Programme.

JOIN THE DIVERSE MBA COMMUNITY AT RSM

Class sizes are limited to ensure interaction is intimate, and students are carefully selected to work together so no single perspective or industry dominates the discussions. During the programme, you work in groups of about six people on projects that require intense collaboration and team management. Each team incorporates six different cultures, educational and industry backgrounds, experiences and personal opinions as well as gender diversity.

THE INTERNATIONAL OFFICE

Two buildings, one team

Each year the International Office at RSM facilitates a flow of nearly 600 in- and out-going students within the Bachelor, Master, and MBA Exchange Programmes.

COME AND MEET US!

Staff members are happy to assist, advise and support incoming exchange students prior to, during and after their exchange. The International Office is the first meeting point to establish new student exchange agreements and is the home of communication with RSM's network of more than 100 business schools around the world. For the most recent information on every programme, please consult the Exchange Programmes' websites or contact the programme managers co-ordinating international exchanges for your particular programme.

The International Office operates from two locations: the Bachelor and Master Exchanges in T-building, whereas the MBA Exchange activities take place in J-building.
