the Ultimate Boardroom

SEE WHO SITS AT THE HELM OF THE MOST POWERFUL BOARDS IN NEW YORK

A NEW GENERATION OF PHILANTHROPISTS
SAFE SUN PRACTICES AND PHILANTHROPY MEET SHAVING FOR A CURE
If you want to change the world, don’t give. Invest.

Heifer International doesn’t give people a handout; we give them a way out... out of hunger, poverty and desperation. For more than 65 years, in more than 125 countries including the U.S., we’ve turned hardworking but hungry people into entrepreneurs by supplying livestock and training in Earth-friendly agriculture. Cows, ducks, chickens, goats and other livestock produce milk, eggs, wool and organic fertilizer that people can use or sell, transforming their lives by building microenterprises. Communities are able to feed, clothe, educate and care for their families. The families agree to Pass on the Gift of livestock and training, creating a sustainable circle of hope and self-reliance. And that’s the kind of return we can all appreciate. Find out more at our website www.heifer.org/invest.
By Christine Liu

There’s a new generation of givers on the scene—driven, philanthropic-minded young New Yorkers who donate their time to their favorite cause, whether it be to sustain museums or support New York’s iconic cultural organizations like Carnegie Hall or Lincoln Center. Below are just a few of the emerging young philanthropists in our city today. An emerging artist herself, Annika Connor makes it her mission to help sustain the local art community. “As an artist, I believe I have a responsibility to support the community in which I’m creating,” Connor said. Connor is a member of the Young Fellows of the Frick Collection, the Guggenheim Young Collectors Council and Acquisitions Committee, the Screen Actors Guild, Fractured Atlas, Emerging Leaders of New York Arts, Art & Business Council, Volunteer Lawyers for the Arts and the Roundtable and Fashion Committee at the National Arts Club. Connor is also the president of Active Ideas Productions, an arts-devoted corporation that serves the art community through publication of young artists’ works.

Seven years ago, Connor made a commitment to donate the average of one painting sale a year to different cultural institutions. “As my painting values and sales have increased, the amount I give increases, too,” Connor said. As a patron of many museums, she credits the Frick Collection for influencing her aesthetic. “I used to come to the museum as a young girl, and I know I wouldn’t be the artist I am today without its influence,” she said. “Even today, the inspiration I find there cannot be measured. Any donations or support I give is just my way of saying thanks to the museums in the museum.”

But it’s not just individual philanthropists that are taking center stage. Groups of young philanthropists are becoming the new norm. Carnegie Hall Notables is a group of young New Yorkers dedicated to supporting arts and music education in New York City and around the globe. This group is reserved for those under 40 only. “The Carnegie Hall Notables play an active role in furthering Carnegie Hall’s mission to bring the transformative power of music to the widest possible audience,” said Luke Gay, manager of Carnegie Hall Notables. Membership into the Notables program ranges from the Prelude level ($20) to Supporter ($500), Sustainer ($1,000) and Patron ($2,000). Funding from Carnegie Hall Notables benefits the Weill Music Institute at Carnegie Hall. Reaching more than 170,000 people annually, WMI provides free and low-cost programs for people of all ages, regardless of musical background. The Notables’ newest program is the Musical Connections program, which brings free live music and creative workshops to local homeless shelters, correctional facilities, healthcare settings and senior service organizations, Gay said. In return for their hard work, Notables also get some perks. “Notables are invited to a range of programs each season, including cocktail receptions, panel discussions, and behind-the-scenes events at Carnegie Hall,” Gay said. They can also purchase discounted tickets to selected Carnegie Hall events for just $20. Now that’s a steal.

Carnegie Hall isn’t the only big-name cultural institution that encourages young people to get involved in philanthropy. Young Patrons of Lincoln Center (YPLC) brings young music lovers together to appreciate—and benefit—art in its many forms. “It’s so important at a place like Lincoln Center, where a lot of our audiences are on the older side, [to get young people involved],” said Caroline Hamilton, assistant director of Individual Giving. YPLC is a group intended to facilitate further giving down the road, Hamilton said.

“It was important to start a group where young concert goers can support us a little now, and hopefully support us more in the future,” she said. Membership at a young patron level is just $250, and includes two exclusive YPLC events, discounted price for the YPLC annual benefit, sneak peeks at Lincoln Center programming and even first dibs on ticket sales, all of which foster an early love for the arts. Sounds like a win-win to us.
THE ULTIMATE BOARDROOM
We give you the inside scoop on New York’s chairman of the boards

By Natalie Howard

Chairwoman of the Board of the UJA-Federation of New York
Alisa Robbins Doctoroff

Alisa Robbins Doctoroff sits at the helm of the world’s largest local philanthropy, one known for strengthening community and helping 1.4 million people in New York City, Westchester County and Long Island, as well as three million in Israel and 60 other countries. Funds raised by UJA-Federation sustain the activities of more than 100 health, human-service, educational, and community agencies. Every day, these community-based organizations provide a multitude of services that improve and enhance people’s lives.

Doctoroff was appointed chairwoman of the board of UJA-Federation in July 2010, bringing dedication and years of experience to her new role. Before becoming chair, Doctoroff served as the president of the Abraham Joshua Heschel School, where she helped found its high-school division in 2001. Doctoroff graduated from Harvard College and received an M.B.A from the University of Chicago, as well as an M.A in Jewish studies from the Jewish Theological Seminary.

“I see community as UJA-Federation’s largest asset, and strengthening it as its greatest challenge,” she said. “It is also what people, Jews and non-Jews alike, need most in a world that is global, fast-paced and demanding.”

The Lustgarten Foundation
Chairman of the Board
Charles Dolan

If Charles Dolan had to vocalize the Lustgarten Foundation’s key goals, it would be “to increase national awareness of pancreatic cancer and fund more research.” And since its founding in 1998, the organization has been doing just that.

The Lustgarten Foundation supports research to find a cure for pancreatic cancer, facilitates dialogue within the medical and scientific community, and educates the public about the disease. Because Cablevision Systems Corporation underwrites the foundation’s administrative costs, 100 percent of all donations to the foundation, including those garnered from fund-raising events such as the Holiday Rock & Roll Bash and the Marc Lustgarten Memorial Golf Outing, go directly to pancreatic cancer research.

The Lustgarten Foundation bears the name of Marc Lustgarten, former vice chairman of Cablevision and a victim of pancreatic cancer. It is the United States’ largest private supporter of pancreatic cancer research, contributing more than $38 million to research. Charles Dolan is the founder and chairman of Cablevision, the founder of HBO as well as the chairman of the board of directors for the Lustgarten Foundation. He worked with Marc Lustgarten from 1975 to Lustgarten’s death, in 1999. Before succumbing to his pancreatic cancer, Lustgarten helped found his namesake organization, which Dolan continues to chair.
The Lincoln Center Corporate Fund, a unique example of an effective business/arts partnership, raises vital unrestricted funds from corporations and professional firms for arts and cultural programs at Lincoln Center. The unrestricted nature of these funds is crucial to these organizations’ mission of bringing the best in the performing arts to the broadest audience possible. For information about the Corporate Fund and the benefits available to participating companies and their employees, please call 212.875.5430.

LEADERSHIP

COMMITTEE CHAIR
William R. Harrison, Jr.
JPMorgan Chase & Co.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS
Robert F. Aming
KPMG LLP
Keith T. Banks
Claresta
Private Wealth Management
Angelica Cantlon
International Flavors & Fragrances
Richard Chace
King & Spalding LLP
David A. Coulter
Warburg Pincus LLC
Andrew L. Farkas
Island Capital Group
Thomas H. Glocer
Thomson Reuters
Richard A. Goldberg
Maurice R. Greenberg
C.V. Starr and Co.
David W. Heliennak
Morgan Stanley
Robert A. Iger
The Walt Disney Company
Charles G. Ludmer
J.H. Cohn LLP
Peter L. Malkin, Esq.
Malkin Holdings, LLC
William E. Mitchell
Sequel Capital Management, LLC
Bruce E. Mosler
Cusman & Wakefield, Inc.
Narendra P. Mulani
Accenture
Charles F. Niemeth, Esq.
Baker & McKenzie LLP
Michael O’Brien, Esq.
Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale and Dor LLP
Douglas L. Paul
Credit Suisse Securities (USA) LLC
Emesta G. Procope
E.G. Shenkman Co., Inc.
Thomas A. Renyi
BNY Mellon
William R. Rhodes
Citigroup, Inc.
Caroline Roan
Piper Az
Janet L. Robinson
The New York Times Company
Michael I. Roth
Interpublic Group
Sir Howard Stringer
Sony Corporation
Steven R. Swartz
Hearst Corporation
Alar A. Townsend
Crain’s New York Business
Kenneth L. Wyse
Phillips-Van Heusen Corporation
James D. Zirin, Esq.
Sidney Austin LLP

EX OFFICIO
Katherine Farley
Chair, Lincoln Center
Reynold Levy
President, Lincoln Center

As of March 16, 2011

Lincoln Center Corporate Fund

GOLDEN CIRCLE
$250,000 AND MORE
Lincoln Center Business Council
Lincoln Center Resale and Construction Council
MetLife Foundation
The New York Times Company Foundation
The Wall Street Journal

GRAND CIRCLE
$200,000 AND MORE
CB Richard Ellis
The William Randolph Hearst Foundations

OUTSTANDING LEADERSHIP
$150,000 AND MORE
Pfizer Inc

LEADERSHIP
$100,000 AND MORE
Bank of America
Citigroup, Inc.
Credit Suisse
Sony Corporation
The Starr Foundation

OUTSTANDING BENEFACORS
$75,000 AND MORE
Con Edison
JPMorgan Chase

DISTINGUISHED BENEFACORS
$50,000 AND MORE
American Express
BNY Mellon
Benenson Capital Partners, LLC
Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver & Jacobson LLP
Goldman, Sachs & Co.
Gotham Construction Company LLC
IBM International Foundation
ING Clarion Partners
The Jefferies Companies
King & Spalding LLP
Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Malkin
Morgan Stanley
Newman’s Own Foundation
Omnicon Group
Paul, Hastings, Janofsky & Walker LLP
Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison
UBS
The Walt Disney Company

BENEFACORS
$35,000 AND MORE
Crain’s New York Business
Fidelity National Title Insurance Company
Fisher Brothers Foundation
Glennwood Management Corp.
Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co.
KPMG LLP
LAW Foundation

DISTINGUISHED PATRONS
$25,000 AND MORE
AXA Foundation
Accenta LLP
BlackRock
Blank Rome LLP
Brookfield Properties Corp.
CA Technologies
Curtis Malott-Prestovit, Colt & Mosle LLP
Greenberg Traurig
Susan and John Hess HSBC Bank USA, N.A.
International Flavors & Fragrances Inc.
Paragon Group
J.H. Cohn LLP
The Marc Haas Foundation
Mitsui USA Foundation
News Corporation
The New York Observer
Restaurant Associates
Rose Associates, Inc.
Thomson Reuters
Toyota

PATRONS
$15,000 AND MORE
Apollo Global Real Estate
Amhold and S. Bleicherroeder Holdings, Inc.
British-Myers Squibb Company
Capital One Bank
Chevron Corporation
Colgate-Palmolive Company
Cred Agricole Corporate and Investment Bank
Davis & Gilbert LLP
The Durst Organization
Eastdil Secured LLC
Feinberg Properties, LLC
Goldfarb & Eleece
Gregory P. Joseph Law Offices, LLC
The Guardian Life Insurance Company of America
Humana Inc.
Johnson & Johnson
Florence & Robert Kaufman
Kramer Levin Naftalis & Frankel LLP
The Leit Charitable Foundations
Paul Stuart
Phillips-Van Heusen Corporation
Richard H. Holzer Memorial Foundation
The Segal Company
Mr. & Mrs. Larry A. Silverstein
Sullivan & Cromwell LLP
TIAA-CREF
Tishman Speyer
Wells Fargo Bank

FRIEND
$10,000 AND MORE
A & E Television Networks
AVX Corporation
Best Buy Company, Inc.
The Blackstone Charitable Foundation
Blooomberg
The Bloomingdale’s Fund of the Macy’s Foundation
Brown-Forman Corporation
Charles F. and Anne Meckes Niemeth Foundation
The Coca-Cola Company
David and Susan Coulter
Ernst & Young LLP
First Manhattan Co.
Fitch, Inc.
Fullbright & Jaworski L.L.P.
General Atlantic LLC
The Hartford Financial Services Group, Inc.
The Herman Goldman Foundation
Linda and Richard Goldstein
IAC/InterActiveCorp
Island Capital Group
ITOCHU International, Inc.
J.C.C. Fund of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce and Industry of New York, Inc.
Jack Resnick & Sons
Latham & Watkins
Lazard
Mann Publications
McMullan Family Fund
Merrick
Bill and Jan Mitchel
Mitsubishi International Corporation
Ogilvy & Mather Worldwide
OSI Pharmaceuticals, Inc.
Roche
Roxo
Watch U.S.A., Inc.
Samuel I. Newhouse Foundation
Service Directions Inc.
Sidley Austin LLP
Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP
Standard Motor Products, Inc.
Steven and Tina Swartz
Sumitomo Corporation of America
SYMES Corp
The Syms Foundations
TD Bank N.A.
Tom James Company
Verizon Communications

DISSINGUISHED DONORS
$5,000 AND MORE
Abbey Spanier Rodd & Abrams LLP
Anchin, Block & Anchin LLP
Aon Corporation
Associate Ophthalmologists, PC
Bernstein Global Wealth Management
Boston Properties
ClearVision Optical

Communications Partners
& Associates, LLC
Corning Incorporated Foundation
Martha Crownshield
Daiva Capital Markets America Inc.
Deborah van der Heyden,
Jones Lang LaSalle, Inc.
The Dow Foundation
E.G. Bowman Co., Inc.
Elias B. Cohen & Associates
Fujisankai Communications International Inc.
G-III Apparel Group, Ltd.
Gaylord Entertainment Foundation
Hertz, Hanson & Company, LLP
Interaudit Bank
Jones Day
Kekst amp Company Incorporated
Loews Corporation
McCANN WORLDGROUP
MillbergFactors
Mitsui Fudosan America, Inc.
N.S. Bienstock, Inc.
Net Worth Solutions
Peerless Clothing
Randa Corporation
SESAC
Spielman Koenigsgberg & Parker, LLP
Sugar Food Corporation
Swcoop, Inc.
Toshiba America, Inc.
The Trump Organization
UnitedHealthcare
Vandenberg & Felius, LLP
Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale and Dor LLP

DONORS
$3,000 AND MORE
BATTLEY Performance Consulting, Inc.
Covington & Burling LLP
Darkstar Asset Management, LLC
Dennis Miller Associates
Exquisite Apparel Corporation
Fishman & Tobin, Inc.
French & Company, LLC
Greater New York
Grunfeld, Desiderio, Lebowitz, Silverman & Klestadt LLP
Lemle & Wolff
Littlefuse, Inc.
Metcavanne Corporation
Mitchell & Titus, LLP
Rockefeller Group International, Inc.
Search Advisory Group
Shyddo Communications, LLC
ZeroKapvor

AND 25 SUPPORTERS AND CONTRIBUTORS UNDER $3,000
Anonymous

The Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center • The Film Society of Lincoln Center • Jazz at Lincoln Center • The Juilliard School Lincoln Center Theater • The Metropolitan Opera • New York City Ballet • New York City Opera • New York Philharmonic The School of American Ballet • Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts
Ronald McDonald House New York Chairman of the Board

Stanley Shopkorn

Stanley Shopkorn has brought his business know-how to the Ronald McDonald House, helping to balance the house's budget in his first year in office. Shopkorn, chairman since 2006, was the head of equities trading at Moore Capital Management LLC before leaving to open his own hedge fund, Hilltop Park Fund LP.

The Ronald McDonald House New York, located on East 73rd Street between First and York avenues, takes in families of children with cancer who have traveled to New York to receive medical treatment. The Ronald McDonald House NY works with 14 local hospitals to provide its guests with medical treatment. The New York house, with the ability to house 84 families at once, is the organization’s largest.

“Cancer is a horrible disease that can be incredibly disruptive for families,” Shopkorn told the New York University Cancer Institute, for which he sits on the board. This becomes less true with the work of the Ronald McDonald House of New York. Shopkorn relishes working with and for these organizations because “it gives me an opportunity to learn more about cancer, especially in children.”

Kevin Burke has served on the board of directors since 2001 and was named chairman in 2009. Burke has a long history of service to New York City residents that he continues as a part of the board of the YMCA. He is also the chairman, president and CEO of Consolidated Edison Inc. Burke also serves on the boards of various organizations, including the American Gas Association, the New York Botanical Garden and the Energy Association of New York.

The YMCA of Greater New York aims to instill the values of caring, honesty, respect and responsibility in New York City youth, though the organization’s facilities are open to the public. The YMCA offers athletic programs, academic support services, volunteer opportunities and job training to its 350,000 members.

Burke’s philanthropy has him serving the New York public in general, but his role as chairman of the YMCA of Greater NY allows him to interact more closely with one particular demographic: kids.

“The YMCA is the leader in youth services, and we plan to expand our existing programs and develop new programs to benefit New York’s children,” Burke told the organization’s Web site.

In June 2010, Katherine Farley became the second woman to be elected Lincoln Center’s chairwoman when she took over the board of directors. Farley joined Lincoln Center’s board in 2003, became a vice chairman in 2005, and since 2006 has served as chairman of the $1.2 billion Lincoln Center Development Project. This committee focuses on renovating Lincoln Center’s performance spaces, most recently Alice Tully Hall and Broadway Plaza. Farley’s husband, Jerry Speyer, is the chief executive of Tishman Speyer. Lincoln Center, spanning across 16.3 acres and encompassing 12 different organizations, including the Juilliard School, the New York Philharmonic and, of course, the Lincoln Center Theater, is no doubt a tough organization to chair. Farley said she hopes her involvement with Lincoln Center, especially its development team, will help its spaces become “more accessible to the public, more user-friendly for younger audiences.”

The Metropolitan Opera Board

Christine Hunter and Ann Ziff

The Metropolitan Opera is lucky enough to have two chairwomen of the boards —Christine Hunter, who has served as chairman since 2005, and Ann Ziff, who will take on full responsibilities of the position later this year. Hunter has been a member of the Met Opera’s board of directors since 1983. From 1974 to 2004, Hunter served on the board for the Washington National Opera as president, chairwoman of the board and CEO. In May 2010, Ziff joined her as co-chairwoman and board member.
Terrorism in Israel. 9/11. The tsunami. Katrina. The Haiti earthquake.
In all these disasters UJA-Federation responded, providing aid, shelter, and counseling to victims.
But responding is more than about springing into action the day disaster strikes. It’s about having beneficiary agencies prepared for crisis the day before, providing everything from emergency aid on day one to trauma counseling even months later.
Responding to crises. Just one of the things UJA-Federation does to help New Yorkers of all backgrounds and people around the world. To learn more and make a difference, visit www.ujafedny.org.

Bringing Jewish values to life.
James Houghton

After 16 years on the board, James Houghton was named the Metropolitan Museum of Art’s chairman. Houghton holds Bachelor of Arts and M.B.A. degrees from Harvard University, where he is now a senior fellow of Harvard College and a member of the Harvard Corporation. Houghton has a long history of supporting the arts. He currently serves on the boards of the Pierpont Morgan Library and Corning Incorporated, a glassware and ceramics company, which he has been with since 1962. Houghton also serves on the boards for ExxonMobil and MetLife.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art is one of New York City’s largest and oldest art museums. Founded in 1870, the 2 million-square-foot museum displays upward of 2 million pieces of art, reflecting more than 5,000 years of history. Such a sizable base allows the Met to collect and communicate exceedingly diverse stories. That’s a tall order for Houghton to fill. “First and foremost, the priority of the Metropolitan’s trustees and staff is that the museum remains vibrant cultural resource for the widest possible audience,” Houghton said.

Sanford Weill

Sanford Weill might now spend his days as a proponent of classical music, but this was not always the case. Weill attended Peckskill Military Academy before graduating from Cornell University with a Bachelor of Arts degree in government. Weill went into banking and founded his own investment banking firm that he later sold to American Express. He became president of American Express and then resigned in order to form CitiGroup.

Weill, however, hasn’t forgotten his roots. He endowed Cornell with its medical school, called the Weill Cornell Medical College, and has donated more than $250 million to the university. Weill currently serves of chairman of the board of overseers at Weill Cornell Medical College and as an emeritus member of the board of trustees of Cornell University.

Weill also has a long history with Carnegie Hall. In 1986, the Chamber Music Hall was renamed the Joan and Sanford I. Weill Recital Hall in honor of the pair, and in 1991, Sanford was named chairman of the board of trustees.

“I pledge that we will always use your support as you intended to deliver exemplary artistic and education programs and to do all that we can to make the world a better place through music,” Weill wrote in Carnegie Hall’s 2010 Annual Report.

The four different stages performance spaces—Isaac Stern Auditorium, Weill Hall and Zankel Hall—make up the Carnegie Hall building. Built in 1890, Carnegie Hall hosts more than 250 musical performances a year, many of them classical music showcases.

Alan Fishman

Alan Fishman might be new to music education, but he’s certainly not new to Brooklyn. “Throughout my lifetime of living in Brooklyn and raising my children here,” Fishman told the New York Daily News, “I have worked to enrich this great borough with art, culture, educational experiences and economic development.”

Fishman was the president and CEO of the Brooklyn-based Independent Community Bank before it was bought by Sovereign Bank. He was also elected chairman of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce in 2002. Fishman also currently chairs the Brooklyn Academy of Music and the Brooklyn Navy Yard Development Corporation and co-chairs the Downtown Brooklyn Partnership, which oversees and coordinates development plans in downtown Brooklyn.

Established in 1904, the Jewish Museum New York has made a name for itself as one of the nation’s premier exhibitors of Jewish culture. The museum offers numerous family-oriented activities each month, including an activity center and special exhibitions focusing on kid favorites, such as Curious George and Shrek. This new focus on the younger generation might be the work of the museum’s chairman of the board of trustees, Joshua Nash. Elected to the position in 2007, Nash may be the museum’s youngest chairman ever, but that doesn’t mean he’s an amateur. He touts the Jewish Museum New York as a “preeminent institution where millennia of Jewish culture are made manifest through the art and culture of people of all backgrounds.”

Nash succeeded his father, Jack Nash, as the chairman of Avatar Holdings Inc. in 2004. He also chairs Ulysses
52nd Street Project
92nd Street
Abbyssinian Development Corporation
ACCCION USA, INC.
ACE
Adelante of Suffolk County
Adults and Children with Learning and Developmental Disabilities, Inc.
AIDS Community Research Initiative of America
Albert G. Oliver Program
All Stars Project
Alzheimer’s Association Long Island Chapter
Alzheimer’s Association, New York City Chapter
American Lung Association in New York
American Red Cross - Suffolk County Chapter
American Red Cross in Greater New York
American Red Cross in Nassau County
Arab-American Family Support Center
Armony Foundation
Baby Buggy
Bailey House
Bedford Stuyvesant Restoration Bethany House of Nassau County Bideawee, Inc.
Big Brothers Big Sisters of Rockland County
Bowery Residents’ Committee
Bronx Council on the Arts
BronxWorks
Brooklyn Community Services
Cardinal Hayes Home for Children
care for the Homeless
CAREERS for People with Disabilities
Casta Maria
Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Rockville Centre
Catholic Charities, Archdiocese of New York
Catholic Charities, Diocese of Brooklyn and Queens
CDS International
Center for Children’s Initiatives
Center for Family Representation
Center for Hearing and Communication
Center for Independence of the Disabled in New York
Central Park Conservancy
Centurion Foundation
Child Abuse Prevention Services
Children’s Aid Society
Children’s Cancer & Blood Foundation
Children’s Village
Citizens’ Committee for Children of New York
City Harvest
Citymeals-on-Wheels
Coalition for the Homeless
Committee for Hispanic Children and Families
Community Access
Community Resource Exchange
Community Service Society
Creative Response to Conflict
Dancing Classrooms
DEMOs
DoE Fund
DOME Project
DROT
Dutchess Land Conservancy
East Harlem Tutorial Program
Educational Alliance
Educational Video Center
Episcopal Charities of the Diocese of New York
Erase Racism
Eviction Intervention Services
Family Service League
Family Services of Westchester
Federation of Protestant Welfare Agencies
Fight for Sight
Five Towns Senior Center
Food Bank For New York City
Food Bank for Westchester
Food Bank of the Southern Tier
Fortune Society
Foundation House
Freedom From Fear
Friends of Karen
Gabrielle’s Angel Foundation
Gay, Lesbian and Straight Education Network
Gilda’s Club New York City
Girl Scout Council of Greater New York
Global Kids
Goddard Riverside Community Center
God’s Love We Deliver
Good Shepherd Services
Goodwill Industries of Greater New York & Northern New Jersey
Greenwich House
Greyston Foundation
Habitat For Humanity New York City
Harlem Center for Education
Harlem RIBI
Harlem United Community Center
HeartShare Human Services of New York
Helen Keller Services for the Blind
Henry Street Settlement
Hispanic Cultural Center
HIV Law Project
Hope Community Group Kitchen
HOPE Program
Housing Works
Human Rights First
Itfayto Cultural Arts Academy, Inc.
Jay Heritage Center
Jed Foundation
Jericho Project
Jewish Association for Services for the Aged
Jewish Board of Family and Children’s Services
Jewish Guild for the Blind and Affiliates
Junior Achievement of New York
Kips Bay Boys and Girls Club
Lawyers for Children
Leah V. Bill Neighborhood House
Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual & Transgender Community Center
Lighthouse International
Literacy Partners
Literacy Suffolk
Little Flower Children and Family Services of New York
Local Development Corporation of East New York
Long Island Alzheimer’s Foundation
Long Island Care
Long Island Coalition for the Homeless
Long Island Housing Partnership
Long Island Nursing Services
Long Island Teen Challenge
Lupus Alliance of America – Long Island/Queens Affiliate
Masson Square Boys and Girls Club
Make-A-Wish Foundation of Metro New York
Make-A-Wish Foundation of Suffolk Community
Make-A-Wish Foundation of the Hudson Valley
Marty Lyons Foundation
Maryknoll Lay Missioners
Mental Health Association in Suffolk County
Mental Health Association of Nassau County
Mentoring USA
Merry Haven
Merry Home for Children
Montauk Historical Society - Montauk Lighthouse Museum
My Sisters’ Place
myGoodDeed
National Foundation for Facial Reconstruction
Nazareth Housing
Neighborhood Coalition for Shelter
Neighbors Together
New York City Audubon Society
New York City Coalition Against Hunger
New York City Mission Society
New York City Police Foundation
New York Disaster Interfaith Services
New York Historical Society
New York Law Enforcement Foundation
New York Police & Fire Widows’ & Children’s Benefit Fund
New York Restoration Project
Palladia
Partnership for the Homeless
Planned Parenthood of New York City
Police Reserve Association, City of New York
Port Washington Youth Activities
Puppies Behind Bars
Queens Library Foundation
Rainforest Foundation US
Reach into Cultural Heights
Reach Out and Read of Greater New York
Research to Prevent Blindness
Resources for Children with Special Needs
Retreat
Riverdale Neighborhood House
Riverkeeper
Ronald McDonald House of New York
Room to Grow National
Roundabout Theater Company
Rye Arts Center
Safe Horizon
Safe Space NYC
Services and Advocacy for GLBT Elders (SAGE)
Save-A-Pet Animal Rescue
Scenic Hudson
Selphie Community Services
Sesame Workshop
Sexuality Information & Education Council of the United States
SKID Kids Need Involved People (SKIP)
The Sikh Coalition
Society of St. Vincent de Paul in the Diocese of Rockville Centre
South Bronx Overall Economic Development Corporation
Sports and Arts in Schools Foundation
St. Christopher’s
St. Vincent’s Services
Stanley M. Isaacs Neighborhood Center
Starlight Children’s Foundation
State Island Center for Independent Living
State Island Mental Health Society
State Island Museum
Suffolk County United Veteran’s Halfway House Project
Suffolk Y Jewish Community Center
Treetown Lake Reservation
The Catalog for Giving of New York City
The Door - A Center of Alternatives
Theater for the New City Foundation
Theatre Museum
Thursday’s Child
Twenty-First Century Foundation
Union Settlement Association
Unique People Services
United Cerebral Palsy Association of Nassau County
United Hospital Fund
United Neighborhood Houses of Alternatives
United Way of New York City
University Settlement Society of New York
Urban Pathways
VISIONS
Volunteer Referral Center
Westchester Institute for Human Development
Westchester Land Trust
Wildlife Conservation Society
Women in Need
Women’s Club of New York
Women’s Prison Association
Women’s Housing and Economic Development Corporation
World Lung Foundation
World Rehabilitation Fund
Wyandanch Homes and Property Development Corporation
YES Community Counseling Center
YMCA of Central and Northern Westchester, N.Y.
Yorkville Common Pantry
Young Audiences New York

Look for the BBB Accredited Charity Seal and give with confidence. It’s your assurance that the charity meets the rigorous 20 BBB Wise Giving Alliance Standards.
Gary Parr

Gary Parr earned his M.B.A. from Northwestern University, and he has since put it to good use making a name for himself on Wall Street. As the deputy chairman of Lazard Ltd., an independent investment bank, he has brokered transactions involving Lehman Brothers, Barclays, Morgan Stanley, and the New York Stock Exchange. He brings his financial know-how to the New York Philharmonic, the Parr Center for Ethics at the University of North Carolina, and Venetian Heritage Inc., a nonprofit that encourages cultural exchanges between the United States and Italy, as the chairman of each of their boards.

But Parr wasn’t always such an overachiever. As a high school student, Parr didn’t care for academics and was originally denied admittance to the University of Pennsylvania. Nash received his Bachelor of Arts from the University of Pennsylvania.

Both over the years and more recently under Nash’s watch, the Jewish Museum has worked to broaden its influence both demographically and geographically. To expand its realm of influence internationally, the Jewish Museum loans out its exhibitions to cities across the United States and Europe. In tandem with the Bimah Society of Lincoln center, the Jewish Museum also helped found the annual New York Jewish Film Festival with the Film Society of Lincoln Center in 1991.

William Berkley

William Berkley certainly has come full circle. He graduated from New York University’s Stern School of Business in 1966 with a Bachelor of Science degree and then went on to earn his M.B.A. from Harvard Business School. In 1967, he founded W.R. Berkley Corporation, a Fortune 500 insurance holding company, where he still acts as its chairman, director, and CEO.

But Berkley couldn’t forget about N.Y.U. He serves as the chairman of the board and CEO at N.Y.U. as well as the chairman of the board of overseers for the Stern School of Business. N.Y.U. is one of the largest private universities in the country, with more than 40,000 graduate and undergraduate students. The university has a portal campus in Abu Dhabi and recently launched a campaign to become more environmentally friendly by harnessing wind power.

Berkley brings the entrepreneurial spirit that Stern instilled in him to the rest of the university. He works with a self-proclaimed “drive toward bigger, better and faster and the exercise of the imagination without restraint. This is the culture we will continue to make synonymous with that of N.Y.U.”

But Berkley isn’t all well, business. He is on the board of trustees for the National Parks Conservation Association and is the chairman of Achievement First, a coalition of charter schools for inner-city students in Connecticut and New York.

Columbia University

Columbia University is one of the eight Ivy League universities and the oldest institution of higher learning in New York. The university administers the Pulitzer Prize annually. As one of the top research universities in the country, Columbia is looking to expand its campus into Manhattanville in order to have more room for classrooms and research.

Columbia University’s 24-member board of trustees selects the president of the university, oversees all staff appointments, monitors the budget and endowment and protects university property. The university wouldn’t trust just anyone with such lofty responsibilities, and in 2005 bestowed them upon alumnus William Campbell.

Campbell earned his Bachelor of Arts in 1962 and then his Masters of Science in 1964, both from Columbia University. While an undergraduate, Campbell was a star football player. He carried on his legacy by coaching the school’s football team from 1974 to 1979.

Campbell has a history of returning to old favorites. He was formerly the CEO of Intuit Inc. and VP of Marketing at Apple, and now serves on both of their boards.

CUNY Chairman of the Board

The City University of New York is the state’s public university system consisting of 23 higher learning institutions. More than 450,000 students are part of the CUNY schools, which also sponsor CUNY TV, a cable television service, and CUFF, the City University Film Festival, founded in 2009.

In April 2003, Governor George Pataki named Benno Schmidt as the new chairman of the board of trustees for the City University of New York. Schmidt had been vice chairman since 1999. A graduate of Yale University’s undergraduate program and Yale Law School, Schmidt knew exactly where to look first in his mission “to broaden access to educational excellence.”

Schmidt served at Yale University’s 16th president, from 1986 to 1992, and during his term, the endowment grew faster than at any other university. He taught at Columbia University and acted as the dean of its law school.
35 Best Reasons to Ride

- Achilles International
- Alzheimer's Association, New York City Chapter
- American Liver Foundation, Greater New York Division
- ASPCA
- Bike New York/NYC DOT Five Boro Bike Team
- Bronx Zoo/Wildlife Conservation Society
- CancerCare
- Casita Maria Center for Arts and Education
- City Harvest
- Doctor's Without Borders/Médecins Sans Frontières (MSF)
- Free Arts NYC
- The Fresh Air Fund
- God's Love We Deliver
- Hope for the Warriors
- Jewish Board of Family & Children's Services
- Joseph A. Janelli Memorial Fund
- Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation
- Kids of Courage
- Livestrong
- The Michael J. Fox Foundation
- Migraine Research Foundation
- Multiple Myeloma Research Foundation
- National Stroke Association
- OHEL Children's Home & Family Services
- Only Make Believe
- PAX / Real Solutions to Gun Violence
- Riverkeeper
- Ronald McDonald House New York
- Sanctuary for Families
- Special Olympics New York
- Swim Free
- Team Hole in the Wall
- UJA Federation of New York / Sports for Youth
- Union Settlement Association
- Voices of September 11
before returning to Yale.

But Schmidt doesn’t narrow his focus on education reform to secondary schools. He is also the chairman of Avenues: The World School, the first international coalition of private K-12 schools. He was previously the chairman of EdisonLearning, an organization managing public schools in the United States and United Kingdom, where he still serves on the board. A noted proponent and scholar of the First Amendment, Schmidt worked for Earl Warren, chief justice of the US Supreme Court, before returning to the classroom.

New York City Ballet Chairman of the Board John Vogelstein

For the New York City Ballet, two is better than one, and so it has doubled up on some of its most recognizable features. It was the first ballet institution in the world to have two permanent homes—David H. Koch Theater at Lincoln Center and the Saratoga Performing Arts Center in Saratoga Springs, New York. The NYCB has the largest repertoire of any other United States–based ballet company even though it was established relatively recently, in 1948. The New York City Ballet also holds two main objectives: to preserve the standards of excellence established by its founders, and to develop new aesthetics that draw on the talents of contemporary choreographers and composers.

At the helm of all this, however, is only one man—John Vogelstein. A 55-year veteran of the investment banking business, Vogelstein has been with the private-equity firm Warburg Pincus since 1967. Vogelstein sits on the boards of ballet companies and opera firms and everything in between. He is a trustee for New York University and the Jewish Museum and the chairman for the charity Prep for Prep. And just recently, he was named the chairman of Third Way, a moderate Democratic think tank. He also attended Harvard College.

N.Y.U. Langone Medical Center Chairman of the Board Kenneth Langone

The N.Y.U. Langone Medical Center is one of the nation’s highest-quality medical facilities and consists of N.Y.U. School of Medicine, the Skirball Institute for Biomolecular Medicine, the Sackler Institute of Graduate Biomedical Sciences, three hospitals and several research programs.

Kenneth Langone has certainly made a name for himself within the New York University community. He has been a trustee of N.Y.U. since 1997 and the chairman of the N.Y.U. Medical Center’s board of trustees since 1999. In 2008, Kenneth and his wife, Elaine, donated $200 million to N.Y.U.’s Medical School, the single largest donation in the center’s history. In response, N.Y.U. renamed it the N.Y.U. Langone Medical Center. But this wasn’t Langone’s first foray into philanthropy. He was the former director of the New York Stock Exchange, founder of the brokerage firm Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Company and later served as both president and CEO of Nelson Peltz. However, May has always found himself drawn to philanthropy. “I always felt that my skills were best suited to tangible objectives,” May said in an earlier interview. “I recognized that the opportunity at Mount Sinai was both exciting and incredibly frightening.”

“Lucky for them, May was up to the challenge. In his first three years as chairman, May turned a huge profit for Mount Sinai. Today, U.S. News & World Report has ranked Mount Sinai Hospital one of the best hospitals in the United States in 11 different specialties. The Mount Sinai School of Medicine, chartered by the hospital in 1963, is ranked one of the top 20 medical schools in the United States.

John Mack has faced some adversity early on in his life—he attended Duke University originally on a football scholarship, but turned his interests to finance when he was sideline by a cracked vertebra. In 1972, he began working for Morgan Stanley, where he was CEO on and off from 1997 to 2009. Mack is also the chairman of the board at Morgan Stanley, in addition to serving as chairman of the board of New York Presbyterian Hospital since 2005. He was also elected to Duke University’s board of trustees in 1997.
Offering the best value MPA in the region, our MPA specialization in Nonprofit Administration brings together the region’s largest group of students, scholars, and practitioners focused on building successful organizations and brilliant careers.

Course Topics Include:
- Grantsmanship and Fundraising
- Working with Boards and Trustees
- Recruiting Volunteers
- Financial Management
- Community and Governmental Relations
- Strategic Planning

Our Center for Nonprofit Strategy and Management offers:
- Seminars and Lectures
- Consulting Day
- Nonprofit Research
- Center Conferences
- Working Paper Series
- Nonprofit Cases

For more information on the MPA program please visit: www.baruch.cuny.edu/spa/admissions or call: 646-660-6750

Baruch College
School of Public Affairs
Where Innovation Happens
By Coco Mellors

APRIL 1-2
The Seventh Annual Relay for Life for the American Cancer Society is a must-attend philanthropic event this season (5 p.m.-5 a.m., Baruch College Gymnasium). It is an all-night relay event to raise money and fight back against cancer, the disease that never sleeps. The relay begins with a Survivors Lap where cancer survivors are invited to run the track, followed by a Luminaria Ceremony in which candles are lit for loved ones lost to cancer. The event ends with the Fight Back Ceremony.

APRIL 4
The Second Stage Theatre Spring Gala is the perfect event for all musical buffs. The gala, titled “A Moment With You,” honors Donna Perret Rosen. The night is the perfect event for all musical buffs. The gala, titled “A Moment With You,” honors Donna Perret Rosen. The night

APRIL 5
Heifer International’s 5 Gala to benefit Haiti is another party that makes you feel good for attending. Heifer provides a variety of assistance such as livestock, trees, agricultural training and other resources to help struggling families build sustainable futures. The gala will feature music by Haitian Creole jazz group Mozayik, with a special performance by Jean-Ronald LaFond and Jatziri Gallegos’ Jazza Quartet. Presented at the gala will be the “Pass on the Gift” award, which honors the New Farmer Development Project for providing leadership and commitment to the urban agriculture movement. (Galapagos Art Space, Dumbo, Brooklyn, $75 per ticket; $125 for apraj; $85 at the door, includes one drink)

APRIL 7
This celebrity-studded Food Bank for NYC Can-Do Awards Dinner is Food Bank For New York City’s biggest fund-raiser of the year. The evening includes cocktails, dinner, live and silent auctions, Champagne and a dessert reception. The icing on the cake to this event is a surprise musical performance—past performers include such legends as Elvis Costello and Patti Smith. Hosted by co-chairs Mario Batali and Susan Cahn. (Abigail Kirsch’s Pier Sixty at Cipriani at 42nd St.)

APRIL 9
New York City Opera’s Family Benefit: Where the Wild Things Are is the perfect way to introduce children to the world of opera at this fun afternoon event, which includes a matinee performance of Oliver Knussen’s Where the Wild Things Are followed by a buffet lunch, face painting, dancing and a make-your-own sundae bar on the Lincoln Center Promenade. Proceeds support City Opera’s award-winning education programs. (1:30 p.m., David H. Koch Theater, Lincoln Center, $250-$25,000).

The 40th Anniversary NYFA Hall of Fame Benefit.

APRIL 12
James Taylor at Carnegie Hall: A Gala Celebrating 120 Years of Carnegie Hall
Join a night of unforgettable music and celebrate 120 decades of entertainment with James Taylor and guests including Barbara Cook, Steve Martin, Bette Midler, Sting, members of the Tanglewood Festival Chorus and more. Guests can enjoy a pre-concert reception at Carnegie Hall or a post-concert after-party at the Museum of Modern Art with James Taylor and other special guests. (6 p.m. cocktail reception; 7 p.m., James Taylor, Stern Auditorium/Perelman Stage; 9 p.m., After-Party with James Taylor and Special Guests, the Museum of Modern Art, $200, $1,000, $2,500, $5,000)

APRIL 13
City Harvest’s An Evening of Practical Magic boast an evening of cocktails and bidding. The silent auction is followed by an awards ceremony, dinner and a live auction to recognize City Harvest’s generous supporters and honor board member Bill Koenigsberg, president, CEO and founder of Horizon Media. One hundred percent of the ticket price will directly support the efforts of City Harvest to feed hungry New Yorkers; hosted by Cynthia Nixon. (6:30 p.m., cocktails and silent auction; 7:30 p.m., awards ceremony, Cipriani at 42nd St.)

APRIL 13
Take your nose out of your book and into the literary discussion at the Authors In Kind 8th Annual Literary Luncheon. Seminal authors Linda Fairstein, Lee Child, Dan Savage and Ruth Reichl will talk about their most recent projects and books over lunch. Proceeds benefit God’s Love We Deliver. (11:30 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Pierre Hotel, the Cotillion Room, 2 East 61st Street)

APRIL 14
Tickled Pink! Hot Pink Party is a must attend spring event. Be tickled pink by this celebrity-studded event of cocktails, dinner and live music to benefit the Breast Cancer Research Foundation. Sing along to special performances by Elton John and Sting; Elizabeth Hurley’s emcees. The Roz and the Les Goldstein

High Water Women’s Sixth Annual Casino Night.
APRIL 15
Unleash your inner gamer with a night of dinner, gaming, poker and blackjack at the High Water Women’s Sixth Annual Casino Night. Event proceeds will benefit High Water Women’s programs and support of partner organizations that help women and children in need. (6:30 p.m., Gotham Hall, 1356 Broadway at 36th Street, $500-$100,000).

APRIL 21
The black-tie New York City Opera Spring Gala will feature drinks and dancing (naturally) and commence to celebrate the career of famed film and Broadway composer Stephen Schwartz, featuring some of Broadway’s biggest talents. Finish up this magical night with dinner and dancing on the Promenade. (7 p.m., David H. Koch Theater, Lincoln Center Plaza, individual tickets start at $1,250).

APRIL 26
The annual 40th Anniversary NYFA Hall of Fame Benefit is back for another year. The New York Foundation for the Arts will bring together 300 artists and art patrons to celebrate 40 years of service to the arts community and honor filmmaker Todd Haynes, patron of the arts and philanthropist Kathleen O’Grady, choreographer and writer Wendy Perron and photographer Andres Serrano. With junior co-chairs for the event including New York Post-proclaimed “NYC’s newest society girl” Bettina Prentice and Vogue “it girls” Casey Fremont and Karline Moeller, it is sure to be a high-profile event. (6 p.m., cocktails and hors d’oeuvres; 7 p.m., dinner and honors; Prince George Ballroom, 15 East 27th St., $5,000-$10,000).

MAY 4
The 2011 Violet Ball will honor Fiona and Stanley Druckenmiller for their long-standing commitment to NYU. Langone Medical Center. This black-tie event will begin with cocktails followed by dinner, the program and dancing. The gala is chaired by NYU LMC chairman of the board of trustees Ken Langone and physician chairs Saul J. Farber and NYU LMC dean and CEO Robert I. Grossman, M.D. (6:30 p.m., cocktails; 7:30 p.m., dinner and program; Wednesday, Cipriani 42nd St., T10 East 42nd St.)

MAY 5
The Carnegie Hall 120th Anniversary Gala is a glamorous affair with all-star performances by the New York Philharmonic led by Alan Gilbert, virtuoso cellist Yo-Yo Ma and esteemed vocalist Audra McDonald, among others. The concert is followed by dinner and dancing at the Plaza, where guests have the chance to mingle with the musical maestros themselves. (7 p.m., gala concert at Stern Auditorium/Perelman Stage; 9 p.m., gala dinner-dancing at the Grand Ballroom, the Plaza, $1,500-$50,000).

MAY 10
Attend a philanthropic event with a worthy cause—the KIDS of N.Y.U. Springfiling. Enjoy cocktails and drinks to raise funds for children treated at the N.Y.U. Langone Medical Center. Co-chairs are Patty Newburger and Brad Wechsler and the honoree is David S. Feldman, M.D. (6:30 p.m., the Plaza Hotel).

MAY 16
The Ronald McDonald House NY Annual Gala, held in the Grand Ballroom, is an unforgettable night of entertainment and education for guests on the Ronald McDonald House’s role as a home-away-from-home for pediatric cancer patients and their families. (6:30 p.m., cocktails; 7:30 p.m., dinner; Waldorf Astoria, 301 Park Ave.)

ELTON JOHN AND BETTE MIDLER AT THE HOT PINK PARTY

MAY 16
The American Friends of Hebrew University will honor James Wolfensohn, ninth president of the World Bank (Truman Peace Prize), and Dr. Jacob A. Frankel, CEO of JPMorgan Chase International and former governor of the Bank of Israel (Scopus Award), at the AFHU Gala Awards Dinner (the Pierre Hotel, 2 East 61st St., $1,000-$250,000).

JUNE 8
The Corporate Event at the Met is a must-attend gala this season. Enjoy an evening in one of New York’s most beautiful venues that includes an exhibition viewing followed by cocktails and dinner to raise support for all aspects of the museum’s programming. This year, the annual Corporate Benefit will honor Samuel J. Palmisano, chairman of the board, president, and CEO of IBM. (6:30 p.m., the Metropolitan Museum).

JUNE 13
Chefs’ Tribute to Citymeals-on-Wheels will honor chef James Beard and benefit Citymeals-on-Wheels. Guests are invited to sample cuisine from 40 of the country’s top chefs, sip Champagne and cocktails and dance under the stars until midnight. Over the years, the event has raised more than $15 million to help deliver meals to New York’s elderly. Hosted by Nick Valenti of the Patina Restaurant Group. (Rockefeller Center)

JUNE 20
The Bachmann-Strass Dystonia & Parkinson Foundation’s Annual Golf Invitational is back for another year of fun on the greens. This event is the foundation’s premier fundraising event of the year, last year raising more than $1.3 million to fund research for dystonia, Parkinson’s disease and the overlap between the two. DeMarco Morgan, anchor and reporter at WNBC 4 New York, will be the emcee for the evening portion of the event. (Westchester; for more information contact Beth Pfiehl at 212-682-9900).
As the chilly slumber of a New York City winter fades into spring and subsequently summer, most are anxiously awaiting the resurgence of hot weather and beach weekends. Yet with time outside comes the threat of America’s most common cancer—skin cancer, which finds 3.5 million instances afflicting two million people per year.

In the midst of all of summer’s activities, many neglect or forget altogether the proper precautions needed to ensure skin safety from ultraviolet rays.

Dr. Kavita Mariwalla is one of many making sure the negligence toward skin protection changes.

The director of dermatology at Beth Israel and St. Luke’s Medical Centers in Manhattan, Mariwalla is a fellowship-trained micrographic and advanced dermatologic surgeon who is also well versed in Mohs surgery. Mohs surgery, also known as chemosurgery, is a specialized procedure to treat common forms of skin cancer, one that’s now known as the premier treatment of skin cancer, with its narrow surgical margin and high success rate.

Mariwalla has also made her presence felt in the academic community. Having received her medical degree from Yale University, she now teaches at the State University of Stony Brook and has co-authored The Primer in Dermatologic Surgery, used widely by dermatology residents in their training.

Mariwalla is also a prominent figure in the Women’s Dermatologic Society (WDS) serving as the organization’s co-chair for the service committee. “We’re a national organization that supports women in dermatology, and then as an offshoot of that, we have become an organization that is really dedicated to service,” Mariwalla said.

It was through a collaboration with WDS that birthed the Play Safe in the Sun campaign, which provides free cancer screenings in the month of May, also known as Melanoma Awareness Month. Often these screenings are done at public sporting events with support of the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) or United States Tennis Association (USTA).

But Mariwalla has taken the free screening concept a few steps further.

“In New York, I treat a lot of patients who otherwise would not have access to skin cancer treatment,” she said. “I have a partnership with the Ryan Chelsea Center, a center that treats the uninsured, so whenever anyone is diagnosed with skin cancer, they know they can come and see me regardless of their insurance status and they will be taken care of.”

Taking it partly upon herself to provide the extra time and effort, Mariwalla is ensuring that issues pertaining to skin cancer awareness and treatment aren’t being marginalized.

A staggering 90 percent of non-melanoma skin cancers—the most common—are associated with ultraviolet radiation from the sun. This type of skin cancer accounts for 1.3 million cases annually.

Though melanoma is the least common type of skin cancer, it is also the most aggressive, accounting for an estimated 8,700 deaths in 2010 alone. Mariwalla, like many others in the field, understands that the ultimate deterrence is early detection and knowledgeable preparation for time outside. She advises the use of sunscreen 30 minutes before going outside and re-applying every 30 minutes with a sunscreen of at least SPF 30.

“For young people, we know skin cancer is now reaching almost epidemic proportions, with an increasing rate in people under 40,” she said. “The main thing is to not use tanning beds, for doing so exponentially increases your risk for skin cancer. When you’re outside, it will also help to wear a broad brimmed hat, sunglasses and clothes with a tight weave.”

Even with all these tips and precautions, gauging when you’ve had too much sun can be a tricky prospect.

Thus, the idea for a UV sun sense bracelet was born. The bracelets, a joint venture between Mariwalla and the WDS, is a white bracelet that turns purple when the reaplication of sunscreen is necessary.

“It’s a great tool for kids to remind them to reapply, and it kind of goes with the fashion with everyone wearing rubber bracelets recently,” Mariwalla said. “It also works to remind people playing sports because it’s so easy for people to forget and maybe even not realize that you need to put more sunscreen on.”

The bracelet can also detect particularly high levels of UV rays on a certain day. “The bracelet will also tell you if you’re not wearing enough sunscreen,” Mariwalla said. “If you’re outside and it turns purple immediately, even after you put on an SPF 15, then you know you have to go to a higher number because the UV light is particularly strong on that day.”

Between her free cancer screenings, teaching at universities and involvement with the WDS and the distribution of the UV bracelets, Mariwalla is dedicated to making sure that your summer is safer. Now apply that sunscreen and dig your toes in the sand.
He will learn, play, and grow if he gets a balanced diet that includes MILK.

You can sponsor deliveries in your borough.

In 2010 alone, more than three million New Yorkers had difficulty affording nutritious food. When kids consume soft drinks instead of milk, they miss out on essential vitamins and minerals and get empty calories instead.

Milk from the Heart is working to change this by providing free low-fat milk to children in need. This innovative program gives out milk at sites in the highest-need areas of the city and hopes to expand with your help.

“I’m going to prove it’s workable and hopefully other people will feel enough passion about the plight of children who are not getting good nutrition to adopt their town, their cities, their borough, their suburbs and start similar programs.”

— Leonard N. Stern
Manhattan Founding Sponsor
The Wall Street Journal, March 4, 2011

www.hfhnyc.org/MilkFromTheHeart
For sponsorship opportunities contact
Linda Bazerjian: 212.529.5252 x1204
For Nearly 100 Years, Catholic Charities Has Eased Nearly Every Human Need in New York

In a city where restaurants are a hot topic, Catholic Charities New York gives more than 5 million meals a year to hungry New Yorkers. In a city where real estate rules, Catholic Charities shelters more than 1,500 homeless New Yorkers a night. Every year, Catholic Charities gives 27,000 New York children a safe place to play and nearly 5,000 a place to grow and learn. In these uncertain economic times, families who have never had to ask for help before—for rent or mortgage payments, for food or heat for their homes—come to Catholic Charities—and find help and hope for a better future and the strength to overcome hard times.

Catholic Charities New York is never far from people in need. The agency has offices in Manhattan, the Bronx, Staten Island and throughout the Hudson Valley from Rockland and Westchester counties to Ulster and Dutchess. Day laborers in Yonkers find guidance through Catholic Charities. So do immigrant farm workers in Orange County. Catholic Community Services in Rockland feeds the hungry with food from its own community garden. Catholic Charities New York eases nearly every human need.

And religion or lack of it does not enter into the equation for Catholic Charities. As Monsignor Kevin Sullivan, Catholic Charities executive director says, “We serve people or all religions or no religion. Need is our only criterion.”

Now, when the donor dollar is more precious than ever, Catholic Charities uses more of it—88 cents of every dollar—to support direct services for New York’s needy. A former NYC mayor once said, “Catholic Charities – where would New York be without it?” It is a friend when a New Yorker is friendless, a guide when a New Yorker has lost the way, help when a New Yorker has nowhere else to turn, and a source of hope when life seems bleak. Catholic Charities provides help and creates hope while treating each person with dignity.

To help Catholic Charities help: 646-794-2051
To get help: 888-744-7900
www.CatholicCharitiesNY.org
www.facebook.com/CatholicCharities
http://twitter.com/CathCharitiesNY
My name is Ilan.

I was born in Baku in the former Soviet Union and came to Israel when I was three years old.

For a long time it’s been my dream to be a doctor. I am very lucky now because I live in Beersheva and go to the AMIT High School. It has a great program in science and mathematics, and helps me to pursue my dream.

I plan to enter the army after I graduate and then, because I received such a strong education at AMIT, I’ll be going on to medical school. Thank you, AMIT!
In 1917, a group of philanthropists had the foresight to mobilize the resources of the Jewish community and coordinate philanthropic giving. Over the past nine decades, UJA-Federation’s impact has been nothing less than historic.

With a network of more than 100 beneficiary agencies, UJA-Federation helped settle the teeming masses of immigrants that filled New York, held our community aloft during the Great Depression, and rebuilt lives after the Holocaust. UJA-Federation helped bring 3 million Jews to Israel, including 70,000 from Ethiopia, and since 1989, 700,000 from the former Soviet Union, with another 130,000 Russian-speaking Jews settling in the United States. When concerns were raised about the Jewish future, UJA-Federation embraced Jewish identity as a cause.

More recently, UJA-Federation has responded to crises in New York and around the world, including 9/11; launched Connect to Care, a program to help middle-class families and others devastated by the economic downturn; created the Israel Trauma Coalition to respond to rocket and terrorist attacks in Israel; and changed the way people approach the end of life with its Healing and Hospice initiative.

With a reach that spans from New York to Israel to 60 countries around the globe, UJA-Federation touches the lives of 4.5 million people every year, Jews around the world and New Yorkers of all backgrounds, fulfilling a mission to care for people in need, inspire a passion for Jewish life and learning, and strengthen Jewish communities.

Years ago the local milkman was a staple of neighborhood life. Today, in an era of growing food hardship in New York City, leading social services provider Homes for the Homeless has updated the concept of the classic milk truck. This new program called Milk from the Heart delivers free milk to low-income children and families at sites across the city.

The need is clear. Since 2003, the percentage of New York City residents who have difficulty affording food has risen 48 percent to three million people. More children are drinking cheaper and more readily available sugary soft drinks and failing to receive necessary vitamins and minerals contained in milk. Children ages two through eight require two servings of milk each day, but less than half consume that amount, putting them at greater risk for serious health concerns.

Milk from the Heart provides low-fat milk to areas of the city classified as “food deserts,” low-income neighborhoods with fewer grocery stores and more fast-food eateries. Business leader and philanthropist Leonard N. Stern and his wife, Allison, provided founding financial assistance for the program’s Manhattan distribution sites. By sponsoring your borough or neighborhood, you will help ensure that Milk from the Heart serves all of New York City’s neediest families.

Learn more about the program at www.hfhnyc.org/MilkFromTheHeart or call Linda Bazerjian at (212) 529-5252, ext. 1204 for sponsorship opportunities.
A new profession for a new age.

Laws are changing. Competition has intensified. The need for nonprofit expertise has increased in the U.S. and around the world. The George H. Heyman, Jr. Center for Philanthropy and Fundraising is preparing professionals for the new demands of the rapidly evolving philanthropic environment. Our master’s degree, certificate programs, seminars, and online courses are led by a faculty of recognized authorities on all aspects of fundraising and grantmaking. Students emerge with a deep understanding of what will be required of the field’s next generation of leadership.

Continuing Education Information Session: Tuesday, May 3, 6–8 p.m.
Reservations are not required, but please be punctual.

scps.nyu.edu/x541  1 800 FIND NYU, ext.541
Green Auction by Christie’s

On March 29, 2011, the world’s top international collectors, philanthropists, celebrities, and designers will convene at New York City’s Rockefeller Center for a star-studded evening of entertainment, a live fantasy Green Auction by Christie’s, and Runway to Green’s fashion show, debuting Fall 2011 ready-to-wear ensembles and accessories from 27 of the world’s leading designers.

‘Bid to Save the Earth,’ is a unique, one-of-a-kind “green-clusive” collaboration of people, businesses and environmental not-for-profits committed in spirit and action to protecting the future of our Earth. ‘Bid’ also includes a companion silent auction powered by charitybuzz.com, bringing hundreds of once-in-a-lifetime experiences in the realms of fashion, entertainment, business, sports, luxury and travel to the fingertips of bidders around the world.

Proceeds from this event will benefit four leading environmental nonprofits - Oceana, Natural Resources Defense Council, Conservation International, and Central Park Conservancy - which collectively work at the local, national, and international scale to conserve nature for the long term well-being of people.

Bidding is open through April 7 at www.charitybuzz.com/BidtoSaveTheEarth. Fashion looks are available exclusively at www.net-a-porter.com.

Make your Bid to save the Earth by supporting this important event Please visit www.BidToSaveTheEarth.

Expand Your Philanthropic Expertise to the Global Arena at NYU-SCPS

In today’s interconnected world, the public sector must respond to issues globally, requiring that fundraisers be familiar with-and be able to identify-the major issues confronting various countries and their immediate needs.

Designed for those interested in working in the public sector and governmental and nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) as well as professionals already working at foundations and philanthropic institutions, the Certificate in Global Philanthropy at the NYU School of Continuing and Professional Studies (NYU-SCPS) prepares students to assess and address the challenges facing both programming officers and fundraisers.

Offered jointly by the NYU-SCPS George H. Heyman Jr. Center for Philanthropy and Fundraising and the Center for Global Affairs, the seven-course program can be completed within one year of part-time study. Examine current debates about humanitarian assistance, ethics, governance, and related issues-from both the programming and fundraising perspectives.

“This Certificate in Global Philanthropy aims to bolster NGOs by ensuring that their personnel understand both the programming needs and the fundraising requirements of their organizations,” says Naomi Levine, executive director of the Heyman Center. “Because funding is the lifeblood of any nonprofit organization, all nonprofit professionals-whatever their function in the organization-must understand and actually participate in the fundraising process to ensure success.”

Register Now
Student questions regarding the certificate program can be directed to the Heyman Center at (212) 998-6770 or scps.giving@nyu.edu. For more information about this professional certificate as well as many other learning opportunities please visit www.scps.nyu.edu.

AMIT

AMIT nurtures and educates Israeli children to become productive, contributing members of society. Its more than 85 schools, youth villages, surrogate family residences, and other programs are located in 24 cities, development towns and communities throughout Israel, and provide a continuity of values-based, academic excellence from kindergarten through junior college. AMIT schools help each child reach his or her fullest potential, while obtaining the skills and knowledge to build a successful future.

A majority of AMIT’s more than 20,000 children come from families facing economic or other social challenges. Yet, AMIT students also reflect all Israel: religious and secular, Ashkenazi and Sephardi, Sabra and new immigrant. All students are welcome in AMIT’s educational environment, and tolerance, respect and the unity of the Jewish people are basic tenets of AMIT’s philosophy. We are proud that more than 95 per cent of our graduates serve in the Israel Defense Forces or perform National Service.

With American headquarters in New York City and offices in Israel in Jerusalem and Petach Tikvah, AMIT is supported by more than 40,000 families in the United States and hundreds of volunteers in Israel and Europe, working together on behalf of Israel’s most precious resource, its children.

AMIT
817 Broadway, New York, NY 10003
Tel: (212) 477-4720
E-mail: info@amitchildren.org
Web site: www.amitchildren.org
Volunteer to help save homeless pets.
All it takes is time and love.

Sign up today at:
volunteers.bestfriends.org/observer
In the pantheon of saints, there are designated favorites that invariably come to mind, names like Patrick, Valentine and Christopher. Taking the latter-day saint agenda away from religious tale and into the medically charitable, St. Baldrick—a combination of “bald” and “Patrick”—is an imaginary saint, a smiling, hairless leprechaun representing the name that has taken the lead in providing grants for research and raising awareness for children’s cancer.

St. Baldrick’s Foundation has humble and accidental origins. It began as the brainchild of three reinsure executives in New York City in March of 2000. John Bender, Tim Kenny and Enda McDonnell put together an event for their office’s St. Patrick’s Day with 20 “shavees” willing to go bald. Their intentions were twofold—make a small sacrifice to represent a larger cause, and also raising $17,000. By the day of the shaving, held at Jim Brady’s Bar and Restaurant in the Financial District, more than $104,000 in donations was raised.

After the success of this single event, St. Baldrick’s was on the fast track to becoming a force to be reckoned with in the world of philanthropy. “By the third year, we had raised $990,000, and we knew we had something,” said Bender, who now serves as chairman of the board. “That’s when we said, ‘We really have to start building this up.’ We went from having one event in one place and raising $104,000 to two years later raising $990,000 in 37 events across the country.”

St. Baldrick’s is now the largest volunteer-driven fundraising program benefiting childhood cancer research. The organization has events spread across the 50 states as well as 28 countries, with 2010 partners in Canada, Hong Kong, England, Guam and Bermuda. Today, St. Baldrick’s now funds more childhood cancer research grants than any other organization in the country, with the exception of the United States government. Since 2000, more than 150,000 volunteers—including 12,000 women—have left behind their locks for the cause, raising $90 million. Apart from the positives that come with these numbers, St. Baldrick’s is also intent on providing perspective on just how dire the scope of cancer really is. A recent U.S. Congressional briefing contained a startling fact—curing childhood cancer is the
HAIRCUTS FOR A CAUSE

A St. Baldrick’s fund-raising—and hair-raising—event.

By Andrew Guarini

St. Baldrick’s shaves heads for childhood cancer

By the day of the shaving, 20 “shavees” were ready for forever homes. 1,700 animals become ready for forever homes.

After the success of this single event, St. Baldrick’s was reinsured executives in New York City in March of 2000. John McDonnell put together an event that inevitably came to mind, there are designated favorites in the pantheon of saints, and Christopher. Taking the names like Patrick, Valentine and Baldrick—a combination of religious tale and into the soil.

a force to be reckoned with in providing grants for childhood cancer research. So when you invest in Heifer International, you’re investing not in a handout, but a way out... of poverty and desperation. For more than 65 years, in more than 125 countries including the U.S., we’ve helped more than 13 million families help themselves to a better life. A life where they can feed and care for their children. Improve their homes. Start small businesses. Live longer, happier, more productive lives. A life where women—most often the chief caretakers—are treated with dignity, respect and equality.

Find out more at Heifer.org.

Away from the children, the crowd was dressed in formal wear for the event, which included a dinner where 150 people were seated at long tables. It was a wonderful atmosphere to be exposed to, and a family-friend event.

Our model is so simple yet innovative that the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization has endorsed it. With livestock (and trees, grass and seedlings) provided by Heifer International, communities are able to improve their nutrition dramatically. They consume or use the milk, eggs, meat, or wool from their animals, and produce enough to start microenterprises selling the surplus. They use the manure as rich, organic fertilizer to increase crop yields and restore soil integrity. And they use the animals themselves to help move products to market or till the land.

Apart from the positives contained a startling fact—ten years later raising $990,000 in funds more childhood cancer research.

The organization has events across the 50 states as well as 28 countries, with 2010 events held at Jim Brady’s Bar and Restaurant in the Financial District, more than $104,000 was raised. By the third year, we had built this up. We went from trying to go bald. Their intentions were twofold—make a small sacrifice to represent a larger cause, and also raising $17,000.

The St. Baldrick’s fund-raising event takes place in hundreds of places across the country, including 12,000 women—have left behind their locks for the cause, and also raising $17,000. By the day of the shaving, 20 “shavees” were ready for forever homes. 1,700 animals become ready for forever homes.

Make a difference in New York City Volunteer!

WE HELP YOU FIND THE RIGHT PLACE TO VOLUNTEER

CALL 212 889 4805 FOR A FREE INTERVIEW

www.volunteer-referral.org

HEIFER INTERNATIONAL

“Give a man a fish...” You’ve probably heard of Heifer International. Since 1944, we’ve been giving fish... and cows and sheep and goats and chickens and ducks and pigs, along with intense training and follow-through so that impoverished people around the world can eat not just for a day, but for a lifetime.

Our model is so simple yet innovative that the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization has endorsed it. With livestock (and trees, grass and seedlings) provided by Heifer International, communities are able to improve their nutrition dramatically. They consume or use the milk, eggs, meat, or wool from their animals, and produce enough to start microenterprises selling the surplus. They use the manure as rich, organic fertilizer to increase crop yields and restore soil integrity. And they use the animals themselves to help move products to market or till the soil.

So when you invest in Heifer International, you’re investing not in a handout, but a way out... of poverty and desperation. For more than 65 years, in more than 125 countries including the U.S., we’ve helped more than 13 million families help themselves to a better life. A life where they can feed and care for their children. Improve their homes. Start small businesses. Live longer, happier, more productive lives. A life where women—most often the chief caretakers—are treated with dignity, respect and equality.

Find out more at Heifer.org.

BE A LIFESAVER. Volunteer to Help Create a World with No More Homeless Pets®

All it takes is time and love. If you’re passionate about helping animals, Best Friends Animal Society can help you find the perfect volunteer job for you. You can volunteer from your own home, in your community, or at Best Friends’ headquarters in Utah, home of the country’s largest no-kill sanctuary. Here are some of the ways you can help animals:

• Join the Best Friends Network: Connect with an online grassroots community of more than 100,000 people and 1,000 nonprofit groups, all focused on saving animals.

• Help Local Homeless Pets: Help a rescue group or shelter near you care for and find homes for animals. Volunteer to foster a dog or cat, spend time with shelter animals, or just help out with a donation.

• Be an Event Volunteer: From super pet adoptions to Strut Your Mutt fundraisers, volunteers are always needed. And Best Friends sponsors many events near you. Learn more at events.bestfriends.org.

• Plan a Volunteer Vacation: Be one of 30,000 visitors and 8,000 volunteers who come to Best Friends each year to help the sanctuary’s, 1,700 animals become ready for forever homes. Together we can make the dream of No More Homeless Pets come true.

Learn more at volunteer.bestfriends.org/observer.

Call 212 889 4805 for a free interview.

www.volunteer-referral.org
equivalent of curing breast cancer in terms of productive years of life saved. Yet even with this knowledge, there is only 30 cents spent on childhood cancer research for every dollar spent on breast cancer research. What's more, one in five children will not survive their cancer diagnosis.

What seems to be the organization's greatest asset, however, is just how easy it is to volunteer and get involved. A prospective event maintainer can choose the date and location—be it a local high school or your favorite dive bar—and control the number of shavees and donations with an “event coach” assigned by St. Baldrick's. Events can be private or public, and each shavee has a page with before-and-after photos, which they can send to friends and family to receive donations for their hairy sacrifice.

“There’s a certain level of empowerment,” says Bender. “We never want to tell people how to throw an event. Our goal is to give people infrastructure and the tools and then let them customize it to where they live or the venue they want to have it at.”

St. Baldrick's draws strength from the freshly shaved, glistening heads of volunteers. In one sense, it is a showing of solidarity for children stricken with cancer undergoing chemotherapy and the resulting hair loss from treatment. In another, it is a constant means of representation, each participant inevitably telling others or being asked about their closely shorn hair. Event location and accessibility has also attributed to the success of the organization. Community events allow shavees to come out en masse, and events held at bars or restaurants are a unique center of camaraderie for a charity event. Many that participate prepare for and subsequently bond over their shaved heads with cold pints of their favorite nectar.

Despite a suffering economy, St. Baldrick's celebrated its strongest year in 2010 with $22 million raised. Singular events such as “46 Mommas Shave for the Brave,” wherein 46 mothers of cancer-stricken children shave their heads, are raising the bar with fund-raising goals of $500,000. In January 2010 at the Research Priorities Summit, St. Baldrick's expressed a desire for “aggressive goals”—better quality of life for patients during and after treatment, improved chances for long-term survival and funding the training for future researchers in the battle. “The goal is ultimately to find a cure, but the cure itself is not good enough, to be honest with you,” Bender said, echoing the need for less exhaustive treatment.

Bender also emphasizes establishing a younger contingent to help in the search for a cure and better treatments. “Not many people are jumping at the opportunity to go into childhood oncology where you know that 22 percent of your patients aren’t going to make it, all of whom are kids—and by the way, no one doing this is becoming a millionaire,” he said. “We thought up our fellowship program and now we’ve got 40-some-odd fellows who are taking pediatricians and turning them into child oncologists.” St. Baldrick’s worked on me as well—by the end of the month, my two brothers and I will all have shaved heads, courtesy of St. Baldrick’s.
from top left: rachel kemble photography (top and above left); tom bauer St. Baldrick's founder John Bender.

equivalent of curing breast cancer in terms of productive years of life saved. Yet even with this knowledge, there is only 30 cents spent on childhood cancer research for every dollar spent on breast cancer research. What's more, one in five children will not survive their cancer diagnosis.

What seems to be the organization's greatest asset, however, is just how easy it is to volunteer and get involved. A prospective event maintainer can choose the date and location—be it a local high school or your favorite dive bar—and control the number of shavees and donations with an "event coach" assigned by St. Baldrick's. Events can be private or public, and each shavee has a page with before-and-after photos, which they can send to friends and family to receive donations for their hairy sacrifice.

“There's a certain level of empowerment," says Bender. "We never want to tell people how to throw an event. Our goal is to give people infrastructure and the tools and then let them customize it to where they live or the venue they want to have it at."

St. Baldrick's draws strength from the freshly shaved, glistening heads of volunteers. In one sense, it is a showing of solidarity for children stricken with cancer undergoing chemotherapy and the resulting hair loss from treatment. In another, it is a constant means of representation, each participant inevitably telling others or being asked about their closely shorn hair. Event location and accessibility has also attributed to the success of the organization. Community events allow shavees to come out en masse, and events held at bars or restaurants are a unique center of camaraderie for a charity event. Many that participate prepare for and subsequently bond over their shaved heads with cold pints of their favorite nectar.

Despite a suffering economy, St. Baldrick's celebrated its strongest year in 2010 with $22 million raised. Singular events such as "46 Mommas Shave for the Brave," wherein 46 mothers of cancer-stricken children shave their heads, are raising the bar with fund-raising goals of $500,000. In January 2010 at the Research Priorities Summit, St. Baldrick's expressed a desire for "aggressive goals"—better quality of life for patients during and after treatment, improved chances for long-term survival and funding the training for future researchers in the battle.

"The goal is ultimately to find a cure, but the cure itself is not good enough, to be honest with you," Bender said, echoing the need for less exhaustive treatment. Bender also emphasizes establishing a younger contingent to help in the search for a cure and better treatments. "Not many people are jumping at the opportunity to go into childhood oncology where you know that 22 percent of your patients aren't going to make it, all of whom are kids—and by the way, no one doing this is becoming a millionaire," he said. "We thought up our fellowship program and now we've got 40-some odd fellows who are taking pediatricians and turning them into child oncologists."
Before our world is going going gone.

Help the environment by bidding on one-of-a-kind fashion and life experiences at bidtosavetheearth.org